ROCK PLANTS TUNICA SAXIFRAGE FLORE PLENO

The double flowered form of Tunica saxifrage is a most charming and dainty rock plant with minute foliage and long, slender sprays of tiny, double pink flowers, exactly like miniature roses, which tumble over the rocks in a pink mist. Its beauty is the more appreciated because it has a long flowering season in summer and autumn when there are few rock plants in bloom. A relative of the Dianthus family, it is easily grown, and is easily propagated by division or cuttings.

$5.00 a dozen.

HIERACIUM VILLOSUM

Another delight for the rock gardener. The foliage looks like thick, soft gray velvet covered with a silvery white cobweb, and the flowers, coming in June and standing eight inches high, are pure gold. Although one of the hawkweeds, it is not a rampant grower; in fact, it increases rather slowly and can be trusted not to encroach on its neighbors. Propagation is by division.

CHRYSANTHEMUM ACHILLEAEFOLIUM

An evergreen creeper from Siberia and the Caucasus which covers the rocks with a veil of very velvety, light green foliage, and in May bears heads of yellow flowers similar to Achillea tomentosa. It will stand any amount of drought and the foliage remains bright and green through the coldest winter weather.

CYNOGLOSSUM NERVOSUM

There are never enough blue flowers in the border, and this perennial Houndstongue will be a welcome addition to the list, with its long, handsome, smooth, dark green leaves, and many sprays of gentian blue flowers which rise to a height of two feet in June. It is a strong grower and probably should be divided at least every other year.

SPECIALTIES

VIOLA ODORATA "ROSINA"

A true hardy garden violet with single flowers, soft pink in color, possessed of the most delicious perfume of which a violet is capable.

"Rosina" blooms outdoors in early spring for a few weeks, but its long blooming season is in the autumn. Beginning the first of September the blossoms appear continually all the fall, the flowers becoming larger with longer stems, and the color deeper, as the weather becomes cooler. If the plants are kept in a frame, flowers can be picked all winter.

"Rosina" is a strong grower and should be divided every other year. It blooms best in full sun but will stand some shade in summer. The chief requirements are rich soil and plenty of moisture. It is very hardy and in winter needs only the usual protection of straw or peat moss to preserve the foliage.

THREE APRIL PERENNIALS

The three following perennials all begin to bloom in April. They all grow about fifteen inches high and after several years make beautiful large clumps three feet in diameter. They all grow well in shade and are ideal rock plants. All are increased by division after flowering.

ANCHUSA MYOSOTIDIFLORA (Siberian Bugloss). Sprays of true forgetmenot flowers appear with the opening foliage and last for six weeks, while the beautiful large, heart shaped leaves make a splendid mass of dark green all summer.

DORONICUM CLUSII (Downy Leopard's Bane). Large golden daisies which are lovely for cut flowers, with pretty, shining, bright green foliage.

$3.00 a dozen. $20 for 100

PULMONARIA (Spotted Dog). A charming old fashioned perennial, which takes its popular name from the curious way in which the leaves are spotted with white. For six weeks or more in spring the plants are covered with sprays of pink buds which are constantly opening into blue flowers, the two colors making a delightful and unusual picture.

SAXIFRAGE DECIPIENS

A delightful rock plant, as are all the members of the enormous Saxifrage family. This one belongs to the "mossy" section. The rosettes of light green foliage space themselves evenly and grow closely together, making a tidy and pretty carpet which in May is covered with dainty white flowers. It needs some shade. Easily propagated by division.

TROLLIUS

(Popularly called Globe flower. This name arises from the fact that the petals of the flowers curl upwards in spherical form.)

The Globe flowers are beginning to be appreciated for the very great contribution they make to the beauty of gardens. They have handsome, deeply cut foliage, and shining gold flowers. They like shade and a heavy rich soil, but they will grow in sun if they have plenty of water. They are not at their best for two or three years until they have grown into large clumps when they send up many graceful sprays of their beautiful flowers. Propagation is by division after flowering.

GOLDQUELLE HYBRIDS. A fine early blooming variety, bearing quantities of large globe shaped golden flowers in May and again from August through November, so that it is almost a perpetual bloomer.

$5.00 a dozen. $35 for 100

LEDEBOURI. This Trollius blooms in June. The rich orange flowers are open instead of globe shaped, and show a mass of large golden stamens which add very much to their beauty. The plants grow three feet high.

$3.50 a dozen. $25 for 100

TROLLIUS "GOLDEN QUEEN." NEW. This is a glorified form of Ledebouri, being taller and larger in every way. The open flowers are golden yellow and very large, with triple rows of petals and prominent gold stamens. "Golden Queen" is one of the outstanding introductions of late years.

VIOLA "MAGGIE MOTT"

The lovely pinkish lavender viola with which all visitors to England fall in love. The flowers are very large and borne in quantities all through the spring. Like all the English violas, Maggie Mott suffers from the hot weather in summer, and to be at their best they must be planted in the autumn so that they will be ready to burst into bloom at the first coming of spring. They are perfectly hardy with a light covering of straw to protect the foliage in winter.

These violas were grown from English seed and will vary slightly in color but all are beautiful shades of lavender.
